ALBANY BASED COMPANY TO TRAIN U.S. MARINES

AMIC-Group Inc., an Albany based homeland security company announced today they will be holding an Advanced Vehicle Extrication Training session May 9th thru May 12th to train 45 United States Marines in vehicle extrication techniques. The training is being held to ensure that Chemical Biological Incident Response Force (CBIRF) members are skilled in vehicle extrication techniques.

Lt. Colonel Robert Domenici (ret) said, “There have been numerous instances abroad where Improvised Explosive Devices (IED’s) had detonated causing serious vehicle crashes. In many of these crashes passengers have to be extricated from the vehicles.”

According to Domenici, AMIC-Group Inc., trainers Darryl Vandermark, Robert Brady and Paul Smith will be training 45 USMC CBIRF members at the CBIRF training site in Indian Head, MD.

“This training will train 45 Marines in the most advanced techniques available,” Domenici said. “It is my sincere hope that this additional training will help save lives in the field.”
